All-Star Game History – Season 1

Northern Conference 7, Southern Conference 6

MVP – Alexandre Burrows, Oslo (won 2013 Alfa Romeo 8C Spider)

Site: Bratislava; Coaches Viktor Tikhonov (N), Uwe Krupp (S)

BRATISLAVA - The North, coached by Russian Viktor Tikhonov, defeated the South 7-6 in the first ever EURO Hockey League All-Star Game, played this weekend in Bratislava, Slovakia.

It looked good for the Southern Conference after 20 minutes, with Mike Smith of Bern shutting out the North and his teammates staking the Southern Conference to a 2-0 lead. But Alexandre Burrows of Oslo got the Northern Conference going early in the second period with a goal against home town Bratislava's Craig Anderson. Burrows went on to add two assists and be named MVP of the game. With that honor came a new car: a 2013 Alfa Romeo 8C Spider (pictured).

Alfa Romeo, headquartered in Turin (Torino),

Italy, is a sponsor of several EURO teams, with most of their sponsorship dollars going to the two franchises closest to Turin – Milan and Geneva.

The game was tied 6-6 in the waning minutes when Jamie Benn of Edinburgh took a Ryan Suter (Oslo) pass down the wing and slapped the puck into the far side of the goal to beat Kari Lehtonen of Geneva.

All-Star Game History – Season 2

Northern Conference 8, Southern Conference 4

MVP – Eric Staal, Stockholm (won Porsche 911 Carrera)

Site: London; Coaches: Jamie Langenbrunner (N), Roman Hamrlik (S)

LONDON - Eric Staal scored two goals and added two assists Sunday to be named the MVP of the All-Star game. The Northern Conference beat the South, 8-4, a more dominant performance than the North's one-goal win last season.

The MVP honor brought Staal a new Porsche 911 Carrera, but it also brought a healthy dose of pride to Spartan fans who have been struggling through a difficult season thus far. Stockholm is in 11th place in the Northern Conference and 10 points out of the playoffs at the half-way point of the season. He has seen his linemates from last year – Loui Eriksson and Miko Koivu leave in trades this season. But he loved the linemates he had on Sunday. Most of the day, coach Jamie Langenbrunner had him with Milan Lucic of Gothenburg and John Tavares of Edinburgh. Lucic was the game's second star with a goal and 3 assists.

Staal wasn't voted onto the team but was a clear choice to be added as the Stockholm representative. Three other players were added to the game Saturday due to injuries. Lucic's teammate Carl Hagelin came in to replace St. Petersburg's Erik Cole who is injuries; Brent Seabrook of Bern replaced Zdeno Chara of Bratislava and Bryan Little of Prague replaced Drew Stafford of Zurich. Hagelin had 2 goals and an assist on Sunday and Seabrook added an assist.

The Northern Conference, bolstered by Copenhagen goalie Roberto Luongo's flawless goaltending, led 2-0 after the first period and they built on the lead from there.

London, the host team, will have their average game income of $1,285,901 added to the revenue side of their budget, assuming WSH2 allows it.

Northern Conference 8, Southern Conference 4

MVP – Andrei Markov, Moscow (won Spyker Cars B6 Spyder)

Site: Copenhagen;

Coaches: Jaromir Jagr and Daniel Alfredsson (N), Nicklas Lidstrom and Teemu Selanne (S)

COPENHAGEN – For the third time in as many tries, the Northern Conference all-stars defeated their rivals from the Southern Conference in the EURO League All-Star game. And for the second year in a row, the final score was 8-4.

The home team's representatives gave Copenhagen fans a few reasons to cheer – Alexander Ovechkin scored two goals and Alex Goligoski added one – but the game also had a distinct hint of Moscow to it. For one, Ovechkin used to play for Moscow.

And Jaroslav Halak, Spartak's goalie, shut out the South in the third period. But it was defenseman Andrei Markov, Moscow's second pick in this year's draft, who was the real star, scoring a goal and adding 3 assists. Markov's play earned him MVP honors and a Spyker B6 Venator Spyder, manufactured near Amsterdam in the Netherlands.

Milan's Kyle Okposo got the Southern Conference started well with a wrist shot that beat Northern Conference starting goalie Henrik Lundqvist, but Markov tied it a short time later with a slapshot to beat Jon Quick of Munich.

Zach Parise of the Minsk Hussars scored two goals for the North and teammate Taylor Hall, the London Don who was voted as the top left wing in the conference, showed why he was deserving of that honor by scoring once and setting up two teammates for goals.

The game remained close until the middle of the second period. It was 3-3 when Stockholm's entry in the game, Mike Richards, poked home a rebound of an Adam Henrique (Gothenburg) shot to put the Northern Conference in front for good.

In the third period, both Ovechkin and Parise scored their second goals of the game and near the end, with the outcome obvious, Northern Conference co-coaches Daniel Alfredsson and Jaromir Jagr had both of of the goal scorers on the ice for a 2:14 shift, trying to get one of them a hat trick. But Kari Lehtonen of Geneva, wouldn't let that happen.

Three Northern Conference players voted to the all-star team were injured and had to be replaced. Two centers – Sidney Crosby and Stephen Weiss – were replaced by Paul Stastny of Helsinki and Ryan Kesler of Dublin, who were the next highest vote-getters. Each had an assist in the game. Andrej Meszaros of Copenhagen replaced Keith Yandle of Dublin.

Northern Conference 11, Southern Conference 6

MVP – Ryan Kesler, Dublin (won 2014 Peugeot RCZ R Series)

Site: Paris; Coaches: Maxim Sushinsky (N), Denis Perez (S)

PARIS – The Northern Conference continued its dominance of the EURO League all-star game by beating the Southern Conference by 5 goals. The North has won all four all-star games so far. Jaroslav Halak of Moscow got the winners off to a great start by shutting out the Southern stars in the first period, but it was a 6-goal outburst in the third period against Madrid goalie Robin Lehner that was the difference. Three of those six Northern goals were scored by Dublin center Ryan Kesler, who played most of the contest with Dublin teammate Phil Kessel and Jamie Benn of Edinburgh on his line. Kesler was named the game's MVP. He and Kessel led all players with 4 points in the game. Their normal linemate in Dublin, Evander Kane, didn't do too bad himself, scoring two goals.

At one point in the game, the Southern Conference had a lead. A little more than half-way through the game, the fans in Paris got their loudest when Rouge Eiffel Evgeny Malkin sniped a wrist shot over Henrik Lundqvist's right shoulder and the South stars led 4-3.

A scary moment for fans of the Frankfurt Inferno occurred late in the first period. While there was no real checking in the game, there was a high-speed collision involving Frankfurt's Claude Giroux and Moscow's Duncan Keith. Giroux lay on the ice for a few minutes and didn't play the rest of the game, although league officials said he was not injured and was just benched as a precaution.

And in an all-star game first, Berlin's Loui Eriksson did not join the team on the bench in the third period and was seen leaving the Palais Omnisports de Paris-Bercy arena before the end of the game with Silvia Prochadzkova, Miss Slovakia.

MVP – Ryan O'Reilly, Athens (won 2015 Aston Martin DB9)

Site: Helsinki; Coaches: Glen Hanlon (S), Kari Jalonen (N)

HELSINKI – After losing the first four all-star games, the Southern Conference finally beat their northern neighbors and they did so emphatically, victimizing the hometown hero in the process. Trailing 5-3 heading into the third period, Henrik Lundqvist took his turn in the Northern goal crease, but in the relatively warm weather in the first outdoor all-star game, he gotten burned badly. Lundqvist gave up five South goals, including two by the EURO League's all-time leading scorer, Steven Stamkos of Lisbon. Stamkos, who also had an assist, was named the third star of the game. Paris superstar Evgeny Malkin had points on the first two goals of the game and finished as the highest scorer in the game with 4 points, but Ryan O'Reilly of Athens was voted as the game's MVP, winning a new Aston Martin DB9 in the process.

He scored a hat trick and his second goal represented a turning point in the game. When O'Reilly scored his first goal in the first period, he gave the Southern Conference a 3-0 lead that held up into the first intermission. The North responded strongly in the second, scoring twice on Frederik Andersen of Geneva, but O'Reilly gave the South a two-goal lead with a wrist shot past Jonathan Quick's catching glove, and Coach Glen Hanlon's Southern Conference team never looked back.

Jimmy Howard of Berlin shut out the Northern Conference in the first period to turn in the best goaltending performance of the game.

MVP –Milan Lucic, Minsk (won 2016 Koenigsegg Agera R))

Site: Stockholm; Coaches: Shane Doan (N), Zdeno Chara (S)

STOCKHOLM - Now we know what a line of Milan Lucic, Paul Stastny and Rick Nash would look like and it's scary. The three forwards from three different teams looked like they had played together for months, using the size and skill to keep pressure on the Southern Conference goalies on most of their shifts. Lucic finished the game as MVP with 2 goals and 2 assists. Stastny had a goal and 3 assists, while Nash had a goal and 2 assists.

Lucic's Minsk Hussar teammates all contributed to the win. Michael Del Zotto scored a goal and had 3 assists, Carey Price allowed just one goal in his period of work, and Nicklas Backstrom scored after taking a nice pass from teammate Patrick Kane.

Thanks to Price, the Southern Conference had to play from behind most of the game and after the North took a 3-0 lead, the South only got as close as two goals from tying the contest.

Northern Conference 11, Southern Conference 10

MVP –John Tavares, Lisbon (won 2017 Mercedes-AMG GT)

Site: Lisbon; Coaches: Isabela Correia Cavalcanti (N), Beatrice Alves Cunha (S)

That was a close one. The Northern Conference won the EURO All-Star Game for the sixth time in seven seasons, but only by a goal, 11-10.

The smiley, cooperative, practice feel of the game gave way to a pretty competitive contest by the end, as the South put together a third-period rally, led by hometown hero John Tavares of Lisbon HC. Tavares scored a goal and had two assists in the third period, and two more assists before that, to finish the game with 5 points and MVP honors. He was presented the keys to a German-made 2017 Mercedes-AMG GT.

The North led 9-5 after two periods, with Lisbon goalie Kari Ramo letting in five in the second period. The Northern Conference's second line of Nathan MacKinnon (Belfast), Mats Zuccarello and Adam Henrique (both of Stockholm) did the most damage for the winning side, accounting for four goals.

The most "oohs" of the night came on a play by the Northern Conference early in the game when Copenhagen's Devin Setoguchi threw a behind-the-back pass to Oslo's Tyler Seguin who in turn passed back through his legs to Outlaw teammate Shayne Gostisbehere and the rookie blasted a slapshot from the point off the crossbar and down into the South's net. Two other goals of note were a Southern Conference goal in the second period and a Northern Conference goal in the third period.

Both featured two assists by the goal scorer's teammates. Joffrey Lupul fired in a wrist shot after taking passes from his Paris Rouge Eiffels teammates Evgeny Malkin and Alex Pietrangelo; and a Minsk Hussar trio figured into the third-period goal: Maxim Chudinov from Michael Del Zotto and Milan Lucic, who was last year's All-Star game MVP. Chudinov's goal made it 11-8 and held up as the game-winner.

This game featured a stange incident. League officials forgot to name coaches for the game, so they drew names in a raffle and called on two fans to come down and be honorary coaches at the last minute. Isabela Correia Cavalcanti, a 41-year-old benefits administrator from Brandoa, just outside of Lisbon, coached the Northern Conference; while the Southern Conference team with five Lisbon players was coached by Beatrice Alves Cunha, 67, a retired health care executive from Santo, which is up the Atlantic Coast near the city of Porto.

Southern Conference 8, Northern Conference 6

MVP – Brad Marchand, Helsinki (won 2018 Lada 4x4 Bronto)

Site: Moscow; Coaches: Vladimir Vorobyov (N), Vadim Yepanchintsev (S)

MOSCOW, Russia - It was not a banner day for the fans and city that hosted the 8th annual EURO All-Star Game. The Northern Conference entered the third period with a 5-3 lead on the hunt for its 7th win in 8 all-star games, but the South stormed back and took the game 8-6.

The five third-period goals against the Northern Conference all occurred with Alexander Salak, Moscow's lone all-star, between the pipes. Moscow fans started the period cheering wildly and ended up embarrassed and frustrated. Geneva General David Perron scored two of those third-period and one of his goals came while he was reunited on the ice with his old Paris teammates Evgeny Malkin and Joffrey Lupul, who both earned assists on the goal.

Stockholm's Bobby Ryan made it interesting with a goal for the North to cut the South lead to a goal late in the period, but Lupul beat Salak with a deke in tight to give the South its two-goal lead back and make the score 8-6.

The prettiest goal of the game occurred when Helsinki's Brad Marchand - from behind the net - flipped the puck over the net and Dublin's Patric Hornquist batted it out of the air and behind Bratislava goalie Marc-Andre Fleury to make it 5-3 Northern Conference in the second period.

The 2018 Lada 4x4 Bronto presented to Brad Marchand as the game MVP.

Marchand had two more assists and a goal to earn top individual honors in the game. He won a 2018 Lada 4x4 Bronto, manufactured in Tolyatti, Russia.

The game itself was marred by at least three fights in the stands among fans. Moscow police made 48 arrests ranging from public drunkenness to assault, as well as one relating to the passing of counterfeit currency.

Moscow General Manager Ron Lavallee issued an apology on behalf of the club once he was released on bail.

Southern Conference 11, Northern Conference 6

MVP – Logan Couture, Athens (won 2018 BMW M4 GTA)

Site: Minsk; Coaches: Andrei Kostitsyn (S), Sergei Kostitsyn (N)

MINSK, Belarus – The Southern Conference whipped the Northern Conference Sunday 11-6 in the Season 9 EURO All-Star Game. It is only the third time in nine games the South has come out on top.

The first time the Southern Conference won was in Season 5, when Athens' Ryan O'Reilly was named MVP. The MVP this year is also an Athens forward. Logan Couture scored three goals in the first two periods and added two assists and the 5-point show he put on was good enough to win him a brand new car.

When the teams came onto the ice for the third period began, three Northern Conference players made their smartest defensive play of the night, playfully kidnapping Couture and dragging him to the North bench, with defensemen Justin Faulk and Erik Karlsson sitting on him so he couldn't get on the ice for a minute or so. Not everyone affiliated with the Northern team was in such a good mood. Minsk Hussar GM Igor Kirunov watched from his luxury box and three times hurled papers out and into the lower stands. With the score 8-3 late in the second period, South goalie Carey Price, who played in Minsk until this season, made a glove save on Hussar star Jordan Staal and then held the glove hand up to the crowd. Kirunov stormed out. He returned late in the final period, his shirt covered in mustard and his pants very wet and smelling like alcohol. He refused to take questions from reporters.

South Coach Andrei Kostitsyn line juggled all night and the strategy paid off against his brother Sergei, who was coaching the Northern team. Lisbon's Steven Stamkos assisted on all three of Couture's goals, and in the second period, the coach played them with John Tavares, Stamkos' linemate in Lisbon. Tavares assisted on two Couture goals and ended up being runner-up for the MVP honor with 4 assists. Other players who had good games included the South's Vadim Shipachyov of Berlin (2 goals) and goalie Jimmy Howard of Athens (0 goals allowed in a period); and the North's Jeff Skinner of London (1 goal and 2 assists) and Belfast's Gabriel Landeskog (2 goals).

All-Star Game History – Season 10

Northern Conference 16, Southern Conference 3

MVP – Cam Fowler, Stockholm (won 2019 Volkswagen Arteon)

Site: Berlin; Coaches: Nikolai Kulemin (N), Jochen Hecht (S)

Cam Fowler scored 3 goals and assisted on 2 as the North beat the South 16-3 Sunday.

BERLIN, Germany – Home ice advantage apparently means little in an all-star game. On Sunday, the “Visiting” Northern Conference stars, coached by Nikolai Kulemin, completely obliterated Jochen Hecht’s Southern Conference team 16-3. It was the most lopsided all-star game ever, unseating the Season 5 game that the North won 10-3 outdoors in Helsinki, Finland.

The Southern Conference’s defense didn’t hit because it was an all-star game, and apparently they didn’t skate because of too much bratwurst in the dressing room before the game. Goalie Frederik Andersen (Bratislava), Robin Lehner (Madrid) and Tuukka Rask (Paris) were scorched in the game. Andersen, who has the best goalie stats in the league, allowed 7 goals ... in just one period.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the rink, the three North goalies had a pretty easy time of things. Filip Forsberg (Munich) scored twice for the “home” team and Sean Couturier (Madrid) added one. But that was it for the South, which is now 3-7 in All-Star games.

After Minsk forward Thomas Powell made it 6-1 in the first period, players on both sides started smiling and joking around and the German fans picked up the mood, cheering progressively louder with each North goal.

Many Northern Conference skaters wished their stats from the game would be added to their season stats, but Sepp Blatter announced the goals and assists in Berlin would probably not count for toward season stats, but he added “Nothing is for sure in life. Who knows what messages I might get from player agents in the next few days.”

Defenseman Cam Fowler, who played the game alongside his Stockholm teammate Zach Bogosian, was named the outstanding player of the game after scoring 3 goals and adding 2 assists. For his amazing showing, Fowler wins the keys to a 2019 German-made Volkswagen Arteon.

Others who scored more than one goal for the North were Jordan Eberle (Gothenburg), “fourth-liner” Mikko Lehtonen (Belfast), and “fifth-liner” Jamie Benn (Edinburgh). Defensemen Nick Leddy (Moscow) and Northern Conference captain Maxim Chudinov (Minsk) each had 3 assists.

Some of the North’s shine was blocked out by the words of Forsberg after the game. The Munich winger criticized the selection process which failed to include his friend and teammate David Krecji. “David is second in the league in assists and sixth in points but he wasn’t good enough to make the all-star team? The general managers and league officials are villains. Criminals,” Forsberg said. “In Munich we will show you. David will win the scoring title and we will carry the Cup at the end of the year just to show everyone how crooked they are.”

Blatter, the league’s Director of Discipline and Player Safety, said Forsberg would face an undisclosed monetary fine due to his comments.

“We are pretty dishonest. I know at least I am,” Blatter said. “But in general, those who tell the truth should do so knowing they risk making a donation to our bank accounts. This incident seems like a good excuse to remind the players and owners of that.”

All-Star Game History – Season 11

Northern Conference 12, Southern Conference 11

MVP – Tomas Hertl, Oslo (won 2020 Tesla Model 3)

Site: Oslo (outdoors); Coaches: Jens Stoltenberg (N), Magnus Carlsen (S)

OSLO – For most of the Season 11 All-Star Game, outdoors in Oslo, the fans treated it like a huge party, and so did the players. There was a lot of smiling and unnecessary passes, and no checking and shot blocks. Until the final 4 minutes when it got almost tense.

The Northern Conference had the lead for most of the game and they built it to a 4-goal margin when Moscow's Nick Leddy finished a Harlem Globetrotters-type play with a deke against Bratislava's Frederik Andersen. It was the first of 5 goals Andersen allowed in his period in goal ... but he was the best goalie of the period. Jakub Kovar of Edinburgh didn't buckle down and he gave up 7 goals. The Southern Conference turned up the tempo noticeably and they scored three straight goals late in the game as Evgeny Dadonov (Athens), Tyler Toffoli (Bratislava) and finally Tyler Ennis (Madrid) scored and suddenly it was a tie game. Fans were wondering if trailing the whole game was all part of some genius plan by the Southern Conference's honorary coach Magnus Carlsen, world chess champion.

In the last 50 seconds, both teams were actually trying fairly hard. Belfast stars Gabriel Landeskog and David Pastrnak with Oslo center Tyler Seguin worked the puck around Andersen's end of the ice. Pastrnak fed Helsinki defenseman Nerius Alisauskas in the slot and he faked a slapshot (you don't take that shot in an all-star game) and wristed one into the net with 32 seconds left on the clock.

For the great Oslo fans, the MVP announcement after the game was very pleasant. Ten Northern Conference players and nine from the South had at least 2 points in the game, so there were plenty of candidates. But one player had 3 goals and it was their guy – Tomas Hertl. When Hertl's name was announced, the fans gave him their loudest cheer of the day.

Northern Conference 12, Southern Conference 10

MVP – Nathan MacKinnon, Belfast (won new Volvo Polestar 2)

Site: Zurich; Coaches: Denise Biellmann (N), Jonas Siegenthaler (S)

Being a goalie in the Season 13 All-Star was more difficult than it was being a skater. The league's best wanted to show off their skill and checking and playing hard-nosed defense was definitely not a priority. Still, Helsinki's Karri Ramo and Belfast's Alexander Salak were pretty good and the Northern Conference continued its domination of the yearly showcase game, winning 12-10. It was that conference's 9th win to just 3 losses.

There were nearly 20 players in the game who scored 2 points or more. Four of them (Nathan MacKinnon, Nerius Alisauskas, William Nylander and Ondrej Palat) scored 4 points. Nathan MacKinnon of Belfast and Nerius Alisauskas of Helsinki started the game like they meant it and helped stake the North to a 6-1 lead after a period. By then, MacKinnon already had a hat trick and Alisauskas had scored twice and added an assist.

The Southern Conference came on strong in the final period with 7 goals on Oslo's Matt Murray, but it was too little, too late. Berlin Smurfs accounted for 10 of the 29 points scored by Southern Conference players.

MVP – Morgan Rielly, Berlin (won Ferrari SF90 Stradale)

Site: Amsterdam; Coaches: Femke Helsema (N), Mark Rutte (S)

Wayne Gretzky poses with Morgan Rielly after the Smurfs defenseman was named MVP of the Season 14 EURO League All-Star Game in Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM – In a city famous for late nights, the Southern Conference took the North to overtime and then won it. The all-time series record is now 9 wins for the North and 4 for the South.

The game started like a real hockey game. Defense was played and the score was 1-1 after a period with starters Martin Jones (London) and Chris Dreidger (Paris) looking sharp between the pipes. The teams battled to a 2-2 tie the next period and each team scored 3 in the third.

The winning team was led by some defending EURO Cup winners. Ryan Nugent-Hopkins played through injury to score the first goal of the game, linemate Vadim Shipachyov scored the team's second goal and Smurf defenseman Morgan Rielly had a goal and an assist. He was also named game MVP and was given the keys to a 2022 Ferrari SF90 Stradale.

The top Northern Conference players were David Pastrnak of Belfast (1 goal, 1 assist) and Auston Matthews of Copenhagen (2 assists)

The winning goal game at 3:16 of overtime. Rielly got to a loose puck that Pastrnak mishandled and moved it up to Mika Zibanejad of Bern who ragged the puck for about 30 seconds. By that time, Erik Karlsson of Paris had replaced Rielly on the ice. Zibanejad fed him a pass in the slot and Karlsson fired a wrist shot to beat Matt Murray of Oslo.

MVP – Nathan MacKinnon, Belfast (won Mercedes-Benz EQA)

Site: Hanover; Coaches: Doc Emrick (N), Rick Jeanerett (S)

Like he did in Zurich two years earlier, Nathan MacKinnon of Belfast won the EURO League All-Star Game MVP award.

HANOVER - Nathan MacKinnon of Belfast came into the Season 15 All-Star Game second in the league in scoring and in goals. And despite it being the all-star break, he didn't take the day off.

The Northern Conference won the game 9-4 and they now lead the series 10-4.

MacKinnon must be a car collector too, because for the second time in 3 years, he was named MVP of the event. Two seasons ago in Zurich, the star center was awarded a Polestar all-electric vehicle. It wasn't that long ago, but there weren't many high-end all-electric cars on the road in those days. This season, after scoring 2 goals and adding an assist, he wins another electric vehicle, a Mercedes-Benz EQA engineered about 500 kilometers away in Stuttgart.

In his five all-star game appearances, the Canadian forward has 7 goals and 5 assists.

MacKinnon's Belfast teammates were also on their game Sunday. Justin Faulk, a defenseman, had 3 assists; winger Gabriel Landeskog had a goal and an assist; and goalie Alexander Salak gave up just one goal in his period of action. Northern Conference honorary coach Doc Emrick found a dominant line combo in Nikolaj Ehlers (Stockholm) with Dublin teammates Matt Duchene and William Nylander. That trio was in on three goals. And while Emrick's guys seemed to be toying with the Southern Conference most of the game, a small group of Southerners was able to have a pretty good outing. Lisbon's Max Domi and John Marino; Paris' Ondrej Palat and Logan Couture; and Bern's Jake Dotchin all scored 2 points.

MVP – Henrik Haapala, Bern (won 2024 Jaguar F-Type R75)

Site: Edinburgh; Coaches: Ewan McGregor (N), Gerard Butler (S)

Henrik Haapala, who scored 3 goals for the Southern Conference, is presented the MVP trophy by Edinburgh General Manager John Charles. Haapala also won a 2024 Jaguar, manufactured in the United Kingdom.

EDINBURGH – Thanks to big performances from some All-Star Game newcomers, the Southern Conference managed to score a lopsided victory over the Northern Conference, 10-4 in Scotland.

The South doesn't win often, and they now have 5 wins and 10 losses in the all-time series. A trio of first-time all-stars had a lot to do with the win. Henrik Haapala of Bern, Anthony Cirelli of Kosice, and Milan's Robby Fabbri formed a line for coach Gerard Butler and they scorched the Northern Conference defense. Haapala, who is tied for the Bern team lead in goals with 22 in 43 games, scored a hat trick. Cirelli assisted on two of those goals and on two others. And Fabbri also assisted on two of Haapala's goals.

The game was a close one-goal affair when the third period started – with Alex Nedeljkovic in goal for the North and Robin Lehner playing for the South. Nedeljkovic must have felt like the roof caved in on his side of the building. He gave up five goals while Lehner stopped everything the North shot. To be fair to the Dublin goalie, his defensemen seemed to forget about playing defense entirely as their squad pushed for a rally that never materialized.

In another all-star game first, about a third of the crowd left in the third period after Copenhagen star Erik Forssell, watching in the stands, got up and stormed out. Forssell seemed to be suddenly angry after his former teammate in Berlin, Ryan Nugent-Hopkins, tallied to put the South ahead 8-4. About 4,000 members of the crowd followed him out, chanting his name, and they did not return.

Southern Conference 14, Northern Conference 3

MVP – Robert Thomas, Prague (won 2025 Vauxhall Astra GSe)

Site: Dublin, Ireland; Coaches: Colm Meaney (N), Debra Crew (S)

DUBLIN, Ireland - The All-Star Game turned into the Robert Thomas Variety Show in the second period when the Prague Sparta right wing scored four goals. He worked very well with Lisbon's Mathew Barzal and went on to score 5 goals and 2 assists in the game. Thomas was an easy choice for Game MVP.

Barzal ended with 2 goals and 2 assists and was named 2nd Star. But Thomas and Barzal were far from the only Southern Conference players who had fabulous showings as the conference won the game 14-3 to bring their record to a more respectable 6-10 over the life of the annual event.

Bern's Juuse Saros pulled off a rarity by shutting out an all-star lineup in a period. He was the South's starting goalie. Other South players who put in notable shows were Oliver Bjorkstrand (Munich) and Alexander Polunin (Zurich) who had 3 assists each, and Nico Hischier (Bern) who scored 2 goals.

Kirill Kaprizov of Edinburgh and Patrik Laine of Helsinki actually had nice games for the Northern Conference, with a goal and an assist each, but their work was completely overshadowed by the South.

Southern Conference Coach Debra Crew, who was seen dining with Sepp Blatter two nights before the game, said, "I am so happy that it's over. I think I went above and beyond the call of duty to get the Southern Conference this win. Mr. Blatter is a different kind of guy."

All-Star Game History – The Uniforms

On Sept. 17, 2012, The EURO League unveiled the uniforms that will be worn in the all-star game.

The league logo (European Union) colors of blue and gold were incorporated into the jersey design that features the league logo on the chest with the conference name either above (for the Northern Conference) or below (Southern) the logo. The shoulders and arms are simple, just one-color piping all the way down the arm, with the all-star game logo and the host team's country flag placed as patches near the bottom of each sleeve.

To vote for a city to host the event, go to the poll that will be posted on the Websim page. Be aware that because WSH has limits on the number of answers that can be attached to a poll, it will be divided into four parts.

In addition to the location for the game, the players who make up the two teams will be decided by votes of the general managers.

Websim Hockey's polls feature will be used to select the host city, but NOT to choose the team rosters for three reasons:

- There is no way to tell if GMs voted for their own players.
- Also, if the instructions say "Vote for 3 at each position," and someone votes for 4 or 5 or 6, there is no way to go back to that GM to have him correct the vote (Limiting the vote to 1 per position would probably not fill out a lineup if there is one clear choice.)
- And there is no way to have weighted voting, for example, 5 points for your first choice, 3 for your second and 1 for your third.

So the voting procedure will be the same as it was in the past, with GMs sending their ranked choices to the commissioner. More on that below.

Here's how the all-star event will work:

Date: The event will be held on a weekend announced by the commissioner.

Location: GMs vote on where they would like the game to be held.

Rosters: Voting on all positions will become available once the nominees and statistics are posted. The commissioner will post relevant statistics for all positions on the league forum page as well as the blog at <https://eurohockeyleague.wordpress.com/>. General managers will have about 14 days to vote for their top 3 at each position (top 5 defensemen) in each conference. Voting will be done through a Google Forms survey. Four or five players at each forward position will be selected for each conference team. 8 defensemen and 3 goalies will also be selected. GMs may not vote for their own players.

An announcement of the final all-star roster will be made within 2 days of the final position vote. All-stars with the highest LD rating will be considered in the naming of captains for the squads. The commissioner will add a player from any team which did not place a player on the team so that every team gets some representation in the game.

Coaches: The coaches for each conference team will be named by a panel of one league official.

Skills competition: The EURO's fastest skater, hardest shot, and most accurate shooter will be decided the day before the all-star game. The commissioner will take a player from each team's pro roster for each of the 3 competitions. The player with the highest (SP) rating will be entered in the fastest skater contest; the player with the highest (ST+SHO) will vie for hardest shot; and the highest (SHO+PA+FI) will compete for most accurate shooter. Since chance is involved in any game, their totals will be multiplied by a random number between 95 and 100 to determine the outcomes. Winners get no money, but they do get glory and their names in the paper.

The game itself: The commissioner will use the all stars' stats from the regular season games played closest to the all-star game to produce a box score. Total plus-minus and the goalies' performances will be used to determine the winner of the game. It won't be an exact science thing, but which ever conference's all-stars perform better that weekend will win the game. Goal scorers and assist getters from the regular season games will be thrown onto a spreadsheet and a random number generator will determine who scored and assisted in the all-star game. If a player scores a hat trick in their regular season game, he would have his name appear on the spreadsheet extra 3 times. Players who did not score in their regular season games will have a chance to score, but not as great of a chance, so it's possible an all-star who didn't score in a week could score in the all-star game.

Player of the game: The commissioner will select a player of the game. He will win a car made by a European car manufacturer and his photo will appear in the game story.
